Wisconsin Health Workforce Data Collaborative

The Wisconsin Health Workforce Data Collaborative (WHWDC) includes state agencies, provider organizations and academic partners. It is organized around a vision that access to healthcare and prevention services not be limited by gaps in workforce supply and demand and that Wisconsin’s workforce planning be data driven. Its purpose is to collect and analyze supply, demand, and distribution data for targeted health occupations in order to help ensure that in the future, Wisconsin has a diverse health care workforce that is appropriate and sufficient in number for addressing the health care needs of the public. The group’s goal is to enable its various partner organizations, agencies and other interested parties to make recommendations based on their own vision of the future, as informed by solid information and analysis provided through the Collaborative.
